Re:  Transportation Security Administration (TSA) Compliance for CCSF Labels and Tamper Evident Tapes

A) CCSF Labels -- The TSA has established printing standards for the labels and hang tags used for CCSF applications.  All the CCSF labels listed on our website comply with these standards.

B) CCSF Tamper Evident Tapes -- The TSA does not certify specific tamper evident tapes in advance, nor do they have specific standards for tape.

Rather, the prospective Certified Cargo Screening Facility (CCSF) location requests tape samples (from the tape manufacturer) of what they intend to use for their facility.  During the certification process, the tapes are tested by the TSA to confirm their acceptance and compliance.

Currently, we sell our tamper evident tapes to hundreds of CCSF-customers, who used our tapes to successfully complete the CCSF certification process for their facility.   Therefore, we recommend using the same tapes, which have been successfully certified by other companies.

Here is the list of our tamper evident tapes (by product code prefix) which have been successfully certified by other CCSF companies:

PST series
EST series
PVT series
EVT series
PFT series
EFT series
CCSF-PVT series (replaced CCSF-PST series)

To our knowledge, we have never had a reported issue for TSA certification and compliance for any of the above tapes.

Please let me know if there are further questions or concerns.
